

The Comfey Chair

By McCoy (original post)

There is an old wingback chair, recently reupolstered in leather, off by itself in a nitch of the lobby. Often someone will be seen napping in the chair.

People napping in the chair report the strangest dreams. Highly detailed, often of what the world would be like if they had never been born, or if they had followed "the road not taken," or surrealistic landscapes where familiar people are very, very different.

Some reformed criminals have claimed that a nap in that chair was what turned their lives around, seeing what would happen if they remained on their old path.
