

The Missing Father

By tkdguy (original post)

An attractive young lady seems desperate for help. She says her father has disappeared. He was last seen going into his room, and nobody saw him leave. The old man was known as an inventor with strange ideas; his latest obsession was teleportation. When the characters examine the room, nothing will seem to be out of place, except for tiny objects such as nails and screws seemingly falling from out of nowhere.

Did the device he was working on take him to another part of the world? Is he lost in the space-time continuum? Or is he in another dimension?

Or did some malevolent entity nursing an old grudge against the characters kidnap him, hoping to use him as bait?
