

Zara Jenkins, Bartender

Zara Jenkins fled her dying homeworld, Gersplotch III, after warring factions from two extreme religious sects successfully managed to overthrow the monarchy by releasing a toxic compound, derived from a deadly night shade, into the drinking water supply.

Being a resourceful young woman she soon made her mark in the underworld. A keen card player, skilled fighter and unaffected by even large quantities of alcohol, she seduced her way into more than one nefarious business deal. Famous for her Sunset over Viridian IV cocktail, she now owns her own bar, The Dark Horse, on a remote space station located on the edge of the Matrix Galaxy. Although no one actually knows just how she managed to find enough platinum to buy it from the previous owner, a rather shady character himself.

A humanoid of remarkable presence, she is most remembered for her long dark hair, piercing blue eyes and black leather attire. Unafraid to use her telepathic ability to scope out new business deals amongst the many dodgy characters who pass through her establishment, she has seen her share of adventure.

She can get you anything your heart desires...for a reasonable price, of course.
